Dear Folks,

The Custody Project (TCP) assists qualified mothers and their children with care, custody, and visitation expenses in recognition of the extreme hardships imposed upon some families as the children are growing.

When mothers throughout the country call TCP for help with the complexities of their cases, our response includes telephonic and financial support, providing references and agency contacts which might be useful and, when grants are dispensed, negotiating pro- or low-bono arrangements, or an affordable payment plan at zero percent interest with their attorneys when applicable.

One mother helped this year had custody of her four children for several years, in part due to domestic violence upon her and her children, until a new judge took the case and would not hear evidence of further distress to the children, expert evidence, the childrens' / teens' testimony, or regard the testimony of the mother. Instead, custody of the four children was given the father and child support of over $1300/month and limited supervised and, eventually, limited unsupervised weekend and holiday visitation were ordered for this working mother. Due to the child support award, she is upside down almost every month year after year and, despite her best efforts to reduce the child support proportionately and to regain custody, she has met failure, whether in pro per or through prior attorneys as she could afford them. Over time, as three of her children turned 18, two moved in with her soon after their 18th birthdays, and the third may in 6 months after he graduates high school. Without the protection of his older siblings, this mom has concerns for the safety of her youngest son while in his father's care and, like his older siblings, her 10-year-old boy has always wanted to live with her. When she applied for a grant, the objective was to retain an attorney who would help her reduce or eliminate the child support and regain custody of her youngest. The attorney, with these aims in mind, agreed that once TCP grant monies are exhausted, she will pay no more than $200 - $250 per month at zero percent interest towards the remainder of fees due him.

A non-working mother of six watched her marriage dissolve upon discovering her successful husband was having an affair. He agreed to generous spousal and child support, allowing her to remain an at-home mother to her busy and growing household and he moved out. However, his payments became inconsistent and, eventually, nonexistent, reducing this unskilled mother to poverty and public housing. Still well-to-do himself and now remarried, this father sued for custody and won. The 3 oldest moved out of his home after each turned 18, but he still retains custody of two teens and a pre-teen. The mother would like custody of her three youngest and to recoup back child and spousal support due of approximately $330,000, which she could use towards the welfare of her children and the purchase of her own home. Although she now earns a modest living self-employed and is also in training for a more promising and lucrative career, she is still on public support, struggling financially, and unable to afford an attorney. While she managed to put down a small retainer by foregoing her rent, when she applied for a grant, The Custody Project sent a partial rent payment to her landlord to balance her account as well as another to her attorney to fully meet his demanded retainer. She and her attorney plan to sue for the $330,000 due her and then approach the court to modify custody of her three youngest to her, using recovered funds to further pay her attorney, with the rest going towards her future with her children.

A third mother with custody of her two young children due, in part to domestic violence, upon receiving a cancer diagnosis and persevering through an extended recovery in her home state, lost them to her ex. He had stepped in to help and then refused to return them, successfully obtaining custody in his state and strategically blocking most of her contact with her children for years, including by obscuring his address, location, and the exact whereabouts of the children in two different states until pro bono attorneys assisted her. Now, she has limited contact through a restricted visitation schedule which is hard for her to exercise. The court's order requires her to pay approximately $1000 in traveling and lodging expenses per visit, which she cannot afford to do, as she is living several states away, close to her doctors and required chemotherapy. Now, she is making plans to move to the father's state, find new doctors, and resettle near her children. Once there, she and her attorneys will approach the court again with a modification request in hopes of obtaining custody or a more favorable and affordable visitation schedule. The Custody Project's grant went to her pro bono attorneys to help cover court expenses and experts as needed, and towards some of her visitation expenses to help ensure she can occasionally see her children.

And, as they echo the plight and the extremes a mother can experience, we continue to share these excerpts:

- ▲ Another mother, requiring the lifting of her childrens' legal restraining orders, which were causing them to live in unnecessary and extreme poverty, stated, "To provide well for my children we should move, yet they are restrained by legal orders and we live in poverty as a result."
- ▲ TCP assisted a mom who, unreasonably denied visitation or custody of her child, said, "I have been unable to see my son for two years now. I owe tens of thousands of dollars in legal fees still..."

Your help and donations are so important for these and many other families. You help lift mothers and make legal representation more affordable so that they can care for and protect their children, who are often lost in a miasma of complex legal maneuvers which must be negotiated by simple mothers, who have neither the training nor resources to be successful on their own.

Mothers commonly stretch dollars daily to feed, clothe, and care for their children and themselves, often working for $4 – $15 per hour, through babysitting, waitress, piecework, and other occupations paying below or near minimum wage. But when circumstances arise such as domestic violence, abuse, legal attempts to remove custody, inadequate or absent child support, or legal restraints that prevent mothers from improving the quality of life for their families, their lives are made extraordinarily more difficult and their economic challenges are made infinitely harsher. With attorneys requiring substantial retainers of $1,000-$10,000+, charging $25-$300+ per hour, and court and legal fees in addition, the overarching cost to mothers defending the custody and best interests of their children can seem insurmountable.

If not broken by its financial crush, mothers must withstand relentless court and ancillary expenses to protect their children. Imposed upon the disadvantaged and overextended, such burdens cause unavoidable familial privation and there remains a great need to be met. The Custody Project's mission, "to promote the general welfare, both directly and indirectly, of women and their children as a unit, as related to care, custody, and visitation issues," continues: TCP has helped children and their mothers for 29 years. Yet, much remains to be done to assist these hapless families in need.

So, once a year a letter is sent inviting your gracious donations, contributions, and services. It is an honor to stand with you, to make the way easier for families in need. Your grants have often kept deserving families afloat at perilous junctures, and your generosity makes it possible for The Custody Project to help qualified mothers meet legal expenses and provide for their children, assisting with legal costs when they are defending the custody and visitation of their children, and providing funds for common necessities when such legal expenses prevent it and they are unable. And, although the daunting hardships such mothers face make complex stories where excerpts barely, or will not, do justice, this letter shares a little about our families so a light may shine on these cases, although privacy precludes names and pictures. (For more, see our site's About Us: Case Excerpts; and mothers, see our Services Section).

Luckily, while most of the difficulties our mothers face are resolved with adequate funds for legal representation, there are very few resources nationwide responsive to the plight of these families. The Custody Project's Heart to Heart Grant Program has been operational for over twenty-eight years, and our revolving-door loan program serves when, as mothers repay their loans, the funds become available to help other families in need. TCP also assists in other ways including telephone support, brief lectures, information exchange, and meeting with mothers. Because of you, we have helped families in the U.S. Virgin Islands and all 50 states, with the exception of Alaska, and our range continues to expand.

Especially during The Double Up Matches – Giving Tuesday, The Christmas Season, and Mothers' Month of May, your compassion makes the difference. As so many mothers are in great need of financial assistance to protect and sustain their children, please help shine a light on the difficulties these families face and join with others to support our Matches: This year, a group of generous donors will match your donations, up to $3800 spread over Giving Tuesday, The Christmas Season, and during Mother's Month of May. You can visit our Happenings and Drives (pp. 3-4, 6, 10) and Our Charitable News Flashes! (pp. 4-7) for information and ways to donate, as well as You Can Help on our site to explore many other ways to reach out, even at no cost when shopping; download a current or prior Annual Appeal / Newsletter (its link: below, p.3) from our site @ About Us: Annual Newsletter (Donors and Mothers), or receive it by email or during the year as postage becomes affordable and share it with interested donors and mothers needing assistance. The Custody Project is a 501(c)(3), charitable, tax-exempt, nonprofit organization, Fed. Tax ID #95-4521373 and contributions are tax-deductible to the extent allowable by law (pp. 9-10).

Acknowledgment Wall. We are especially indebted to our new and long-standing donors, our Board of Directors, and all of you giving of your time, money and/or resources. Your assistance to families in such adverse circumstances has been essential since 1994, and your generosity to mothers and their children has made our continuing service possible. To the businesses, foundations, and service organizations benefiting the lives of families by supporting The Custody Project: you are listed on our site @ Contributors: Community Angels. Or, to be listed, please add a note with your donation or contact us @ 850.682.3460. In light of the worldwide need to assuage those pinioned by tragic dilemma, your compassion touches our mothers and children, who are often desperate and forgotten, and we thank all of you. And to the mothers who have allowed us to assist, we sincerely thank you, too.

Making the Holidays and Christmas Season merrier and Mother's Day more cheerful, your gifts cover legal expenses for qualified mothers who must defend custody and visitation of their children in courts, and help those who can no longer provide the common necessities of life for their families due to the cost of defending the custody or visitation of their children. Thank you for your prior gifts, ongoing support, and quiet compassion to our families. May this New Year be full of wisdom and blessings. Happy Holidays and Best Wishes!

Donna Signorelli, for The Custody Project

Insights, Observations, Networking:

- 1) There is a need for a National Pro Bono Alliance and The Custody Project does partner with law firms and nonprofits across the country to offer our qualified mothers assistance on a case-by-case basis. Large corporate law firms require their attorneys handle pro bono cases yearly and they are paid to do so. Some of these attorneys recognize the dilemma occurring in family law, that representation is unaffordable to families earning common wages, that representation for custody matters is essential, and that remedies are needed. Unfortunately, corporate attorneys required to do pro bono often have little experience with family law. But, some are willing to help and there may be ways that they can. A pro bono corporate attorney could volunteer or intern under the family law counsel representing the mother. The mother's lead attorney can attest to the financial and legal merits of the case, benefit from the additional legal assistance offered pro bono, and mentor the volunteer attorney, while the mother benefits from competent legal assistance and a reduced bill. TCP also welcomes such partnerships with family law firms willing to do the same. Such models extend our grants into gifts with far greater leverage. These are a few of the first steps towards the eventual creation of a pro bono / low bono alliance for family law matters nationally.

- 2) The Custody Project has always helped qualified mothers with custody and visitation issues. Along the way, some cases have gone forward on appeal, opening a door of partnership with other organizations, attorneys, firms, and individuals seeking to assist these families with potentially precedent-setting cases. The Custody Project will continue to assist with both common and precedent-setting cases.
- 3) Much remains to be done to lift awareness nationally, to elevate response to the plight our families face, and to evoke compassionate remedies. The Custody Project will continue to raise awareness nationally, including through interviews, radio, film, and other visuals, regarding the difficulties families endure when grappling with family law matters and expenses. You can view our homemade YouTube clips taken during The 2016-2017 Drive here (You Tube: <https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCrx31SQT2ihmovANQAwONWg>).
- 4) Donors and supporters of The 2016-17 Drive: promised perks as visuals and videos were uploaded to Indiegogo as a carousel for Phase I at <https://www.indiegogo.com/projects/drive-for-the-voiceless#/> and for Phase II, visit <https://www.indiegogo.com/projects/drive-for-the-voiceless-our-traveling-art-exhibit#/>. Phase III requested funds specifically for a documentary at <https://www.generosity.com/education-fundraising/documenting-their-voice-drive-for-the-voiceless> These plans are on hold until sufficient time can be devoted and donations raised.
- 5) Mothers: Protecting children and handling a protracted court case requires any mother's all, and those mothers need your financial support during the critical time when court expenses overwhelm the delicate economic architecture upon which such a family relies. The dimes and dollars you give help create a financial base so that families across the country are truly assisted. And if mothers do not help – who will? While both men and women regularly donate, it is usually because they, or someone they care about, has been affected. The issue of the safety of children and the need to have money to protect them legally is paramount, and mothers must help each other, simply because it is the preeminent priority. Take away: mothers must actively birth this issue. And some of the ways you can help will not cost you – see below (pp. 4-7) and our site's You Can Help Section.

To ensure your donations are matched on behalf of our mothers and children when donating to The Custody Project through public drives, please watch for your successful confirmations.

Company Matching Gift Programs: when you give and your employer matches you dollar for dollar, you double the power of your gifts. Some cover administrative fees, even United Way's, so that TCP can receive 100% of your matching donations. Let us know if your gift is being matched by your employer, if any documents are needed from us, remember to enclose the matching gift form with your donation to us, and list our Federal Tax Identification number as needed, 95-4521373.

Employer Fund Drives. Some employers manage employee fund drives without the United Way and others allow employees to organize workplace fund drives. If that is the case where you work and you want to help our mothers, please contact your representative to find out how to donate to us.

Grants, Corporate Giving. Some companies offer grants to nonprofits that their staff support, nominate, or volunteer with. Please check your company's possibilities.

State and Federal Campaigns. Federal and State employees may designate a gift to TCP through the campaign at your place of work. If your campaign allows write-ins, list The Custody Project, our address, and Fed. Tax ID #95-4521373 (page 1).

United Way Worldwide and your Local UW (www.unitedway.org, 800.892.2757, 800.543.7709). Workplace Campaigns. You may be able to make a gift to The Custody Project through a workplace United Way Campaign by designating us, indicating your donation to TCP on your UW pledge form, listing our name, address, contact information, sometimes in the Comment Section, and our Fed. Tax ID #95-4521373 (p. 1). You might ask your campaign organizer / coordinator about the designation steps and if the Campaign covers costs and processing fees so The Custody Project can receive 100% of your donations. Often you can choose whether you want to cover the processing fee or have it taken from the donation, whether you want to make a one-time or recurring donation, and if the ways to donate include by credit card and PayPal (useful when overseas). United Way Bay Area (of CA): www.uwba.org (415 808 4300).

Moving Vehicle and Land Donations. You can benefit TCP by donating your used moving vehicles and land. If you donate through towing companies, your church or other forums, designate us as the nonprofit beneficiary on intake forms and contact us as needed. The Volunteers of America (“VOA”) via Charitable Adult Rides and Services, accepts moving and non-running motorized vehicle donations; the VOA may accept property / real estate in some states. When you donate your vehicle either through the VOA or online @ <https://www.carshelpingpeople.org> or www.careasy.org and designate TCP as your nonprofit beneficiary, we receive a percentage of the net proceeds (perhaps 50% of the gross minus towing and processing fees – ask.) from the VOA or a percentage (perhaps 80%) of the net proceeds from vehicles sold by Charitable Adult Rides – ask (www.careasy.org). Typically, both handle the sale, the paperwork, help determine the deductible amount, and will provide you a donation receipt and written statement for tax purposes, while you help The Custody Project and may receive tax benefits. Usually, they will pick up most cars and trucks at no cost. Ask about other vehicles / equipment including boats, RVs, golf carts, motorcycles, trailers, wheelchairs and other specialty vehicles, as they will need photos for evaluation. And, according to Charitable Adult Rides representatives, for sales up to, for example, $500, you can claim the full $500; for sales over a specific amount, for example, $500, you can claim a deduction based on the actual sale price of the vehicle minus the towing and processing fees. Verify this with them as policies change with time. Stocks, Options, Investments. You can donate stock, stock options, other securities, and investments to TCP. Usually, to the extent provided by IRS tax laws, you benefit by being able to deduct the full market value while at the same time avoiding capital gains taxes, and TCP benefits by receiving property that will generate funds for our services. Tax laws are subject to change, so speak with an investment counselor or your tax professional for information and updates as needed.

Raffles. Occasionally TCP conducts Raffles, and contributions are welcome. To donate cash, gift certificates, or items of value, contact us. Winners like cash options, transportable prizes are useful, and cash and gift certificates travel best. Thank you to Dancing Dog Mining Company for contributing cash awards and its “Silver Hearts of Love” Newborn Medallions over the years. To distribute raffles in your area, to purchase them, and for additional information, contact us.

Wish List & Volunteer Opportunities

Have time but not cash? Volunteers may be able to deduct mileage and other expenses incurred in conjunction with their work for The Custody Project to the extent allowable by law. And, although you cannot deduct the value of your time, we can provide you with a letter indicating your service, if this is advisable by your tax professional.

GENUFLECTION

Now, Will Fall On You

In the darkness of the testing ground,
I practiced, privately;
And hundreds after, training,
Practiced after me:

And in the burning –
Trammeled – by the fires angels sow,
We withstood those brothers
When Love, they would not know.

Our mangled spirits tracing
Wisdom's woven, patterned thread...
Who fathomed joy arising
From our ashen, ancient dread?

In silence lift redemptive eyes,
Sluiced in haunted sight,
To trued and deep perspectives,
Built on Truth and Light...

We, quiet, spied the footpath,
Of sunlit earth and grass,
As sacred shone its golden way...
Our mystic future and our past.

And genuflected on one knee,
We, in homage, paid our dues,
For the strength bestowed upon us,
Which, now, comes, blessing you.

Now ... it falls on you.

Genuflection was written by a mom who successfully resisted eleven legal attempts by her ex, who attempted to take custody from her and failed every time. It is dedicated to mothers everywhere, and we hope it is an inspiration to you.

Across the country, some courthouses offer free pro per clinics; some attorneys offer free consultations in their offices, at libraries [Lawyers in the Library Programs], and/or at court offices and shelters. Some attorneys will take cases pro bono or at reduced rates, especially through The Battered Women's Alternative, domestic violence agencies, shelters, and when you ask. Check your region or state for helpful organizations, nonprofits, attorneys, women's law centers; talk with law librarians, state bar associations, and paralegals. Check community colleges, colleges, university law libraries, and law departments as law professors, law students, and law librarians may help with portions of cases, legal cites, and pertinent case law. If your finances are stretched, occasionally churches will help; sometimes private or individual sources will assist. And check the cites above, even if your state is not listed.

Some hearings are simple and you can save money by representing yourself. However, if at all possible, arrange to have an attorney represent you for custody hearings (and others of significant import). If you don't have enough money, see if you can work out a financial arrangement of payments over time so that an attorney can represent you for the custody hearings. Offer to do as much as you can, such as organizing your facts and exhibits, and doing your own copying and printing to help reduce costs. If any, ask that interest be forgiven. Later, if you have sufficient money, lump sums can reduce and zero out your bill in lieu of continued payments over time, as most people prefer some cash now to extended payments. Court transcripts can be half-price when requested prior to hearings and sometimes the Certified Shorthand Reporters Board can help you obtain them at no cost. Lastly, certain court expenses occur only if you agree to them: research the law so that you know what legal expenses to refuse. (In some areas, stating that you cannot afford a special master precludes a judge from appointing one). Misuse usually occurs when isolated. For those faced with the abuse and/or molest of their children, you may be able to help your offspring by communicating effectively. Consider contacting your child's local hospitals, physician(s), nurses, teachers, principal, caregivers, coaches, therapist, church(es), police for both the mother's and father's jurisdictions, as well as other professionals, and your child's friends and neighbors. Bring your visitation/custody court order(s) with you, explain the danger your children are (or child is) in and how each person can help, should your child or children disclose to him/her. Abuse decreases when people communicate effectively, when there are a lot of eyes watching children, and when a plan of action is in place. Please visit our site's Services: Support Links, Tips, and Testimonials sections for additional information.
